CENSUS OF 1911.

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE JOHN BURNS, M.P.,
PRESIDENT OF THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD, ETC.

CENSUS OFFICE,
LONDON, S.W.
12th July, 1912.

SIR,

In the Preliminary Report on the Census which we submitted to you on the 10th June, 1911, we gave an account of the number of inhabitants in England and Wales and in the more important of its subdivisions; that Report was based on the unrevised population summaries furnished by the local Registrars and Superintendent Registrars. We now have the honour to submit the first instalment of the detailed abstracts of the census returns. The tables in this volume contain the revised numbers, with details respecting the areas and population enumerated in the several Administrative Counties, in Urban Districts (including County and Municipal Boroughs) with their constituent Civil Parishes and Wards, and in Rural Districts with their constituent Civil Parishes; the population enumerated in Petty Sessional Divisions, County Court Circuits, County Court Districts and in numerous minor areas; also the population enumerated in Institutions, on board vessels, and in barns, sheds, caravans, &c.

As explained in the Preliminary Report, the results of the Census will be presented in volumes, each dealing with the country as a whole, and containing information on certain subjects only. These subject volumes will be divided into two groups as follows:—

A.—Population Statistics.

1. Administrative Areas.
2. Poor Law and Registration Areas.
3. Parliamentary Areas.
4. Ecclesiastical Areas.
5. Various kinds of buildings and the population enumerated therein.
6. Index to the population tables.

B.—Social Statistics.

1. Ages and Condition as to Marriage.
2. Tenements, distinguishing those occupied by various numbers of persons and the number of children under ten years of age.
3. Birthplaces.
4. Infirmities.
5. Occupations and Industries.
6. Language spoken in Wales and in Monmouthshire.
7. Fertility of Marriage.

A volume containing maps and diagrams illustrative of the figures in some of the above reports will be issued separately.

The population volumes will be issued as numbered, but the arrangement of the volumes relating to social statistics has not yet been fully decided.

To meet the convenience of those interested in particular areas only, the issue of the above-mentioned publications will be followed by volumes which will relate to separate counties or groups of counties, and will contain statistics collated from the several subject volumes.

Increased Scope of the Census.—Owing to demands for an extension of the subjects of inquiry, and for more detailed tabulation, each successive enumeration tends to become a more complex operation than its predecessor. The census of 1911 was no exception to this rule, the following additions having been made to the subjects of inquiry:—(a) the duration of existing marriages, (b) the number of living children born to each marriage and the number of these alive at the date of the census, (c) the industries or services with which workers are connected, as distinct from the occupations in which they are personally engaged, (d) in the case of persons born outside England and Wales whether they are residents or visitors in this country, (e) the number of rooms in all dwellings, instead of, as at the two previous censuses, in dwellings of less than five rooms only. The numerous intercensal changes in the areas into which the country is divided and the increase of population also naturally increase the volume of the work.

Area.—The area of England and Wales, according to returns with which the Registrar-General has been favoured by the Director-General of Ordnance Surveys, is 37,337,537 statute acres; these figures include 199,107 acres of inland water, but exclude 807,300 acres of tidal water and foreshore. The acreage quoted in the several tables of this report is that of land and inland water together. The area of land alone is 37,138,430 acres, or 58,029 square miles; and its apportionment in the year 1911 to various uses as ascertained by the Board of Agriculture was approximately as follows:—

	Acres.
Corn Crops	5,822,694
Permanent Grass	15,949,603

Number and Nature of Areas.—The numbers of the areas of which the population is given separately in the census volumes are as follows:—

Administrative Areas:—

- 62 Administrative Counties.
- 75 County Boroughs.
- 29 Metropolitan Boroughs (including the City of London).
- 249 Municipal Boroughs.
- 812 Urban Districts.
- 3,296 Wards of Boroughs and Urban Districts.
- 657 Rural Districts.
- 14,614 Civil Parishes.
- 921 Detached parts of Civil Parishes.
- 744 Petty Sessional Divisions.
- 53 County Court Circuits.
- 495 " " Districts.

Registration Areas:—

- 55 Registration Counties.
- 635 " Districts.
- 2,009 " Subdistricts.

Ecclesiastical Areas:—

- 2 Ecclesiastical Provinces.
- 37† " Dioceses.
- 14,328 " Parishes.
- 393 Extra Parochial Places.

Parliamentary Areas:—

- 468‡ Constituencies.

Complexity and Overlapping of Areas.—A feature by which the Census in this country has always been unfortunately distinguished is the variety and complexity of the areas for which it has been necessary, whether for administrative reasons or for the purpose of preserving statistical continuity through changes often made with but little regard to previously existing divisions, to collect and present returns. Reports on previous Censuses have frequently discussed the origin and character of these divisions of the Kingdom, and we shall have occasion to refer briefly to the subject in connection with Registration Areas (Volume II). But it may be noted here that the legislation of the last thirty years has co-ordinated the various units of area treated of in the present volume and brought them into increasing prominence from an administrative, and therefore from a statistical, point of view; and thus, it may be hoped, paved the way for much simplification of statistical treatment in the future. For example, under the provisions of the Divided Parishes Act of 1882 numerous detached parts of Civil Parishes were added to the parish by which they were wholly surrounded or with which they had the longest common boundary; by the Local Government Act of 1888 no Urban District could in future be in two Administrative Counties; and by the Local Government Act of 1894 no Civil Parish could be partly in an Urban and partly in a Rural District or in two Administrative Counties. The London Government Act of 1899, which divided the Administrative County of London into 28 Metropolitan Boroughs, provided also "for such improvements and simplification of boundaries as might be expedient for convenience of Administration," but although the parish boundaries were assimilated to those of the newly created Boroughs the parliamentary boundaries remained unchanged. Mention should also be made of the City of London (Union of Parishes) Act of 1907, under which 112 city parishes were amalgamated and became one Civil Parish.

† Including the diocese of Sodor and Man.

‡ Excluding the Universities.

Much, however, still remains to be done in the direction of diminishing the confusion and overlapping of boundaries, and there are still three kinds of Counties, with their constituent parts, the Ancient, the Registration and the Administrative, all of which have to be separately distinguished in the Census Reports.

Ancient or geographical Counties are the basis of the Parliamentary County Divisions as constituted by the Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885. These divisions were then formed from Petty Sessional Divisions of Ancient Counties, and it is probable that had the Administrative Counties existed at that time the parliamentary system would have been brought into line with them.

Registration or Union Counties are aggregations of Poor Law Unions.

Administrative Counties were created by the Local Government Act of 1888; they number 62, and the boundaries of these modern counties differ in nearly every case from the boundaries not only of the Registration Counties (see Volume 2, page v), but also of the Ancient Counties. Several of the Administrative Counties as originally constituted were co-terminous with Ancient Counties, and the differences, generally small in extent, were due chiefly to the fact that by the Act of 1888 an urban district which was partly in two Counties was deemed to be entirely in the one that contained the greater portion of the population. The differences between these two kinds of County have, however, been much increased by the Act of 1894, which provided that "the whole of each parish, and, unless the County Council for special reasons otherwise direct, the whole of each rural district shall be within the same Administrative County." As the number of cases in which a parish or rural district was situated partly within two or more Ancient Counties was considerable, this provision, wholesome in intention as providing for necessary simplification of the administrative system of areas, had the unfortunate incidental effect of rendering the great majority of Administrative Counties different in some degree from the historical counties of the same name.

The differences in boundaries between the three kinds of counties are considerable; in only one case (Cumberland) are the boundaries of all three identical; in three other cases the Administrative County is coextensive with the Registration County; and in seven other cases the Administrative County is coextensive with the Parliamentary County. Under the provisions of the Divided Parishes Acts some thousands of changes have been made in the boundaries of Civil Parishes, but in those Acts there is a section expressly declaring that "nothing herein contained shall apply to the Ecclesiastical Divisions of Parishes," so that the differences in the boundaries between Civil and Ecclesiastical Parishes have been constantly growing. Although a great number of detached parts of Civil Parishes have been amalgamated with those parishes by which they were surrounded or to which they were adjacent, there are, nevertheless, still in existence no fewer than 921 detached parts of Civil Parishes.

A further complication arises from the changes in parish boundaries in relation to parliamentary areas. The latter were described in the Redistribution of Seats Act of 1885, as consisting of Petty Sessional Divisions or parts of Petty Sessional Divisions as they existed on January 1st, 1885, but since that Act was passed numbers of the parishes constituting the Petty Sessional Divisions, as also many of the Petty Sessional Divisions themselves, have undergone changes in boundaries, while no corresponding changes have been made in the parliamentary areas.

A few examples will illustrate the existing confusion of boundaries.

The Urban Districts of Brownhills, Oakengates, and Spennymoor each extend into three Poor Law Unions.

The Poor Law Union of Stamford extends into five Administrative Counties, and comprises one Municipal Borough and four Rural Districts.

The Poor Law Union of Crickhowell extends into two Administrative Counties, and comprises one Rural District, one Urban District, and parts of three others.

The Parliamentary Borough of the Hartlepoons comprises the County Borough of West Hartlepool, part of the Municipal Borough of Hartlepool, and part of the Rural District of Hartlepool.

The Parliamentary Borough of Exeter comprises part of the County Borough of Exeter, part of the Urban District of Heavitree, and part of the Rural District of St. Thomas.

The Civil Parishes of Crosby Ravensworth, Hutton le Hole, Foolow, and Bigge's Quarter, have 14, 12, 8, and 7 detached parts respectively.

The foregoing remarks are sufficient to indicate how complicated the English local boundaries still are, and it can be easily seen how much this complexity adds to the difficulty and labour of taking the census.

Changes in Administrative Areas since 1901.—In the past intercensal period, numerous changes were made in the boundaries of the 14,614 Civil Parishes which appear in the present census tables. No fewer than 70 parishes were created, 348 were absorbed in other parishes, and 332 underwent changes of area between 1901 and 1911. In consequence of some of these alterations the boundaries of 12 Administrative and of 8 Registration Counties were altered.

The number of Urban Districts created in the intercensal period was 44, and the number dissolved or merged in other Urban Districts 29, raising the number at the census of 1911 to 1,137* of which 112 underwent change of area. The boundaries of Rural Districts were considerably altered by these changes in the boundaries of Urban Districts.

Classification of Houses.—In the Report on the census of 1901, it was stated that the satisfactory definition of a house had baffled successive generations of census authorities. In England and Wales a house was defined at the several censuses from 1851 to 1901 inclusive as being "all the space within the external and party walls of a building." This definition was adopted by the International Statistical Congress held in London in 1860, and at that date may have been fairly applicable to all but a small number of buildings in this country; such, however, is not now the case, when a large number of families live in dwellings which are not structurally distinct.

Acting on the international definition, the figures relating to houses hitherto published in the census volumes included the following, each reckoned as one house—(a) ordinary dwelling houses and dwellings over shops, (b) houses converted for the occupation of two or more families, (c) maisonnettes or double houses, (d) blocks of flats and model dwellings, each block reckoned as one house irrespective of the number of distinct suites of rooms inhabited by separate families, (e) blocks of shops with residences above, (f) hotels, clubs, boarding houses, (g) institutions such as workhouse establishments, hospitals, asylums, barracks, schools, &c., (h) warehouses, offices and business establishments (these only when inhabited by resident caretakers or others).

It is obvious that the statistics hitherto given in the census tables, relating as they do to "houses" of such widely differing types, lose much of their possible value from the indefinite nature of the material classified. This defect is less serious in the case of the rural areas, where the diversity of type is at its minimum, but the figures for Urban Districts are in many cases very misleading, and wrong inferences have consequently often been drawn from them.

In view therefore of the unsatisfactory character of these returns it has been decided on the present occasion to make a new departure. The numbers of families or separate occupiers will be given as hitherto for each area of every class dealt with, but returns of buildings will be presented only for Urban and Rural Districts. For these areas, however, the various kinds of buildings will be classified in such detail as to do away with the objectionable indefiniteness of the previous returns. Buildings, whether designed for habitation or not, will be classified according to their nature, and the population enumerated in each type of building will be stated. It will be shown for instance how many blocks of flats are contained in a given town, how many separate flats or tenements are contained in these blocks, and what is the population inhabiting them. These returns will constitute the fifth volume relating to population statistics, referred to on page v.

Number of Families.—As in the case of previous censuses, the figures given in the column for “Families or Separate Occupiers” throughout the tables correspond with the number of schedules collected, and therefore include not only the numbers of private families, but also the numbers of institutions, large private establishments, vessels, caravans, &c., in each area. This practice obviously renders it impossible to obtain the number of private households or the average number of persons to a private family. With a view to obtaining this information while retaining the figures relating to “families or separate occupiers” for comparison with those for the previous censuses, two new columns have been introduced into Table 10 in this volume, showing for each Urban and Rural District and Civil Parish the aggregate number of institutions, large establishments, vessels, &c., and the population enumerated therein. By deducting these numbers from the total number of schedules collected and from the total population enumerated, the approximate number of private families and the number of persons comprised in such families can be ascertained. The population of England and Wales at the date of the census of 1911 numbered 36,070,492, enumerated on 8,005,290 schedules; of these, 34,630 schedules, (representing a population of 1,294,090 persons) related to institutions, large establishments, &c. The approximate number of private families in England and Wales was therefore 7,970,660, comprising a population of 34,776,402, and the average number of persons in such families was 4·4. A closer estimate of the number of private families in Urban and Rural Districts will be obtainable from the statistics as to “Tenements” to be published later.

Density of Population.—The aggregate area of England and Wales, including land and inland water but excluding tidal water and foreshore, is 37,337,537 statute acres, or 58,340 square miles. The total population at the date of the census was 36,070,492, and therefore, assuming even distribution of the population over the entire area, each square mile would have been occupied by 618 persons.

The gradual increase of density of population in this country at each successive census is shown in the subjoined statement.

The last column refers to the distance which would separate each individual inhabitant from his nearest neighbour if all were distributed at equal intervals over the whole surface of the country.

Definition of Population.—Before proceeding to discuss further the results of the recent census, it will be desirable to state precisely what is meant by the population of a given area in English census reports. The population of any area in this country has always meant the population actually present within its boundaries at the date of the census. Thus the population enumerated at midnight on Sunday, April 2nd, 1911, in the several areas into which England and Wales is divided, includes private residents, both permanent and temporary, the inmates of institutions and other large establishments, the military population, the vagrant population, and the persons on board vessels which were in the ports on census night, or which arrived there on the following day. The only exceptions made were in the cases of persons engaged in night work, or who were travelling on the night of the census; such persons were counted as belonging to the population of the place at which they arrived on Monday, April 3rd.

In various other countries, such as France, Germany, Belgium, Switzerland and the Dominion of Canada, particulars are obtained not only of the number of persons actually present in each area at the census date (de facto population), but also of all the inhabitants of each area whether present or not, to the exclusion of persons usually living in other areas but who happen to be within the area in question on the census date (de jure population). The latter form of enumeration would be of great value for a number of purposes, and the arguments in its favour have lately been strengthened by the introduction of a similar de jure method of enumeration of births and deaths instead of the simpler, but in many cases misleading, de facto form of enumeration previously followed in their case. The difficulties in the way, however, are very considerable, the chief perhaps being those of defining temporary and habitual residence clearly and comprehensively, and of securing intelligent observance of such definitions on the part of householders when filling up the schedules. Moreover, seeing that the enumeration is taken in this country both at an hour in the day and at a season of the year when persons are mostly in their own homes, it is probable that, with the exception of some few holiday resorts, the actual and the resident populations are closely approximate.

Population and Rates of Increase.—The total number of persons returned as living in England and Wales at midnight on Sunday, April 2nd, 1911, was 36,070,492. The difference between the first and the final count of the total population has never been material in any recent census; in the present instance the unrevised total published in the Preliminary Report exceeded the final count by 4,777. The revised total showed an increase of 3,542,649 upon the number returned at the preceding enumeration in April, 1901, or a decennial rate of increase of 10·9 per cent. This rate of increase was the lowest met with since the date of the first census in 1801, as the following table shows:—

The rate of increase of population depends on two factors: (1) the balance between births and deaths, and (2) the balance between emigration and immigration. Of these factors the former has in this country always been a cause of increase since the commencement of registration, as the births have invariably outnumbered the deaths; while the latter is a cause of decrease at each census, as the emigrants are more numerous than the immigrants in each decennium; such at any rate has been the case since 1851. The recent decline in the rate of growth in the population might therefore be due to two causes, namely, a falling-off in the excess of births over deaths, or an increase in the excess of emigrants over immigrants. From what follows, it will be seen that the decline in the growth of population in the past intercensal period was due entirely to the latter cause. It will be observed from the subjoined statement that the decennial increase of population due to excess of births over deaths ("natural increase"), which had fallen from 15·09 per cent. in 1871–81 to 12·39 in 1891–1901, rose during the past decennium to 12·43 per cent. This rise, however, is so slight that for practical purposes the rate of natural increase may be regarded as having remained stationary.

Although the rate in question has been maintained during the last decennium as a result of the remarkable decline in mortality throughout the period, it must be pointed out that there is no present likelihood of prolonged continuance of this experience, since there is as yet no indication of any check in the decline in the birth-rate, while it is obvious that the death-rate cannot continue to decline indefinitely.

It follows therefore that as the decline in the rate of growth in the population was not caused by a falling-off in natural increment, it must have been due to loss by migration.

The Board of Trade returns (now greatly improved) do not afford the means for accurately determining the number of emigrants or immigrants from or into England and Wales during 1901–1911, but it is possible to ascertain approximately the balance between emigration and immigration from the difference between the actual increase of population as recorded at the census and the natural increase, or that which would have occurred in the absence of any disturbing effect of migration.

TABLE F.

Census Year.	Ennumerated Population of England and Wales.	Actual Intercensal Increase.	Natural Increase.	Difference between Natural Increase and Actual Increase to be accounted for as Loss by Excess of Emigration over Immigration.

The above figures show that the loss of population due to the excess of emigration over immigration, which had amounted to over 164,000 in 1871–1881 and over 600,000 in 1881–1891, fell to 68,000 in 1891–1901, and rose to over 500,000 persons in the past intercensal period. Had these half-million persons remained in the country the rate of increase of population in the decennium 1901–1911 would have been slightly greater than that in the preceding decennium.

International Growth of Population.—It will be of interest to compare the rate of growth of population in this and in other countries, and we are enabled to do this from returns which have been courteously furnished by the Registrars-General of Scotland and Ireland, by some of the census authorities in other parts of the Empire and by the heads of the several foreign statistical bureaux.

The following statement extracted from those returns shows for the three past intercensal periods the rate of growth of population in twenty-one countries. In some of these, viz., New Zealand, Denmark, Germany and France, a quinquennial census is usually taken, but for purposes of comparison the decennial rate of increase is given in the table; the differing dates of taking the census in the different countries, being of no practical importance in this connexion, are ignored.

The prominent features in the above table are, on the one hand, the continuance of the decrease, although at a diminishing rate, of the population of Ireland, the stationary character of the French population, and the remarkable fall in the rate of growth in the last intercensal period in the Norwegian and Scottish populations. On the other hand, among the European countries the German Empire showed the highest rate of increase (15·2 per cent.), and in the British Empire abnormal rates of growth were shown in the last decennium in the populations of the Dominion of Canada and of New Zealand. Comparing, for the period 1901–1911, the rate of growth of population in the United Kingdom with that prevailing in other European countries, it will be observed that in five countries—France, Italy, Norway, Sweden and Hungary—the rate of growth was below that in the United Kingdom, while in six—Austria, Belgium, Switzerland, Denmark, the Netherlands and the German Empire—the rate was above that in the United Kingdom.

Accelerated rates of increase were recorded throughout the three decennia in Sweden, Belgium, the Netherlands and the German Empire, while in the United Kingdom, Norway, Austria and Switzerland the rate of growth, which had increased in the decennium 1891–1901, fell in the decennium 1901–1911. In the Australian Commonwealth, New Zealand, the Dominion of Canada and the United States the rates of increase were, as might be expected, much above the European average. Commenting on the figures for the Indian Empire the Census Commissioner states, “between 1891–1901 there were two widespread and disastrous famines which not only caused a heavy fall in the birth rate, but also, with the diseases which followed in their train, led to a mortality, chiefly in the Native States, of about five millions in excess of the normal. The ensuing ten years, though marked by a few local famines, were, on the whole, favourable to agriculture, and the result has been an accelerated growth of population.”

Population and Rates of Increase or Decrease in County Areas.—By the Local Government Act of 1888, 61 Administrative Counties were created, for each of which a separate County Council was established. In addition, 61 Boroughs which on June 1st, 1888, either had populations of not less than 50,000 or were already counties of themselves, were given the status of separate Administrative Counties, and termed County Boroughs. Since the passing of the Act the Isle of Wight has been created a separate Administrative County. The County Boroughs now number 75, including the County Borough of Stoke on Trent, in which is merged the former County Borough of Hanley.

Table 3 on page 3 shows how the rate of increase of the population, which in the whole of England and Wales in the ten years 1901–11 was equal to 10·9 per cent., was distributed over the whole country.

The areas here selected for comparison are the Administrative Counties together with their associated County Boroughs. In the cases of Cambridgeshire, Hampshire,

† Of these 61 Boroughs, 13 were already Counties, viz.:—Bristol, Canterbury, Chester, Exeter, Gloucester, Kingston upon Hull, Lincoln, Newcastle upon Tyne, Norwich, Nottingham, Southampton, Worcester, and York.

Lincolnshire, Northamptonshire, Suffolk, and Sussex, however, the populations of the separate Administrative Counties into which each of them is divided have been taken collectively. It will be seen from the table that in three English counties—London, Cumberland, and Westmorland—and in five Welsh counties—Carnarvonshire, Cardiganshire, Radnorshire,* Montgomeryshire, and Merionethshire—a decrease in population was recorded in the intercensal period 1901–1911. Of the counties showing decreases between 1901 and 1911 four—Westmorland, Cardiganshire, Montgomeryshire, and Merionethshire—had also declined between 1891 and 1901.

Increases of population occurred in all the counties surrounding or adjacent to the metropolis, viz. :—

	Increase per cent. in Populations in Intercensal Periods.

Surrey	25·3	29·4
Essex	38·4	24·6
Hertfordshire	14·1	20·5
Buckinghamshire	5·6	11·4
Kent	15·7	8·8

The rate of overflow from the metropolitan area into the neighbouring counties was maintained or accelerated in all directions except eastwards, where a notable reduction is manifest.

It will be of interest to compare the rate of growth of population in the counties which, broadly speaking, are mainly commercial and industrial in character, and the rate in the counties of an agricultural character. The complete occupational figures for the census of 1911 are not yet available, but those relating to the previous census enable a broad division to be drawn between the two kinds of counties.

Excluding from the comparison the metropolitan counties, the following 21 counties (with an aggregate population at the census of 1901 of 17,596,330 and at the last census of 19,677,675) may be taken as typically commercial and industrial in character, i.e., counties in which from 60 to 80 per cent. of the male population aged ten years and upwards was engaged in commercial and industrial occupations at the census of 1901.

* At the date of the census of 1901 the population of the County of Radnor was augmented by a large number of men temporarily engaged in the construction of new waterworks for the City of Birmingham. These men, together with their families, account for the abnormal increase of population in the county in the period 1891–1901; consequently it would be misleading to institute comparisons between the populations as enumerated at the last two censuses.

It will be seen that of the counties in which mining is the leading industry, Monmouthshire and Glamorganshire show accelerated rates while Northumberland, Durham and Derbyshire show reduced rates of increase. Nottinghamshire, Cheshire and Flintshire each increased their growth, but in many other counties the increases, while still substantial, are less than in the previous ten years; Leicestershire, for instance, reduced its rate from 16·3 to 8·9, and Northamptonshire from 12·0 to 3·8, Staffordshire from 13·9 to 9·0, Lancashire from 12·3 to 8·9.

In the following 23 counties (with an aggregate population at the 1901 census of 4,131,899 and at the date of the last census of 4,387,113), in which agriculture was returned as the occupation of more than one-fifth of the male population over ten years of age at the census of 1901, the rates of growth of population were as follows :—

It will be noted that in twelve English counties and in three Welsh counties the rates of increase were accelerated in the last decennium, and that Carmarthenshire, Bedfordshire, Lincolnshire, and Dorsetshire showed increases of more than 10 per cent. in the decennium 1901-1911.

Taken in conjunction with the reduction in the rate of increase shown in industrial counties as a whole, counties, however, in which there was generally less room for expansion, the growth of population in the agricultural counties is a phenomenon which can only be finally commented upon when the tabulation of the returns of occupations at the recent census has been completed. How far the acceleration shown in the aggregate of the agricultural counties may be due to the growth of industries in those counties, how far to agricultural development and prosperity, how far again the increase may be, in the outer suburban districts of the towns, purely residential in character, are questions, however, upon which some further light has been thrown in the case of certain rural parishes by inquiries made through the local registration officers. The results of these inquiries are described in the section dealing with the increase of population in Rural Districts (page xviii).

Urban and Rural Districts.—So many changes have taken place from time to time in the boundaries of Urban and Rural Districts that it is impossible in many cases to ascertain what was the precise population at previous censuses. If, however, we take the Urban and Rural Districts as constituted at each of the seven past censuses we are able to show by the following table the increasing predominance of the urban as compared with the rural element in the population :—

		POPULATION.		Proportion per cent. to total Population of England and Wales.

* The figures for the aggregate of Urban and Rural areas for the censuses of 1851-1871 are only approximations.

It will be noted from the above statement that while in 1851 the numbers of persons living under urban and rural conditions were, broadly speaking, evenly divided, in 1911 no less than 78 per cent. of the population were living under urban, and only 22 per cent. under rural conditions.

It should be mentioned that the increase in the proportion of the population resident in Urban Districts, although mainly due to an actual growth of the population within those areas as existing in the earlier census years, is also partly to be accounted for by the extension of those areas themselves owing to the absorption of areas which were previously rural.

Tables 8-10 show the populations in 1901 and 1911 of each of the 1,137* Urban Districts (including County and Municipal Boroughs) with their constituent Civil Parishes and Wards, and of each of the 657 Rural Districts with their constituent Civil Parishes. The aggregate populations in 1901 and 1911 of these areas as constituted at the latter date, were as follows :—

		POPULATION.		Increase per cent. in Population between 1901 and 1911.

In the preceding intercensal period the rates of increase in the Urban and Rural Districts (as constituted in 1901) had been 15·2 and 2·9 per cent. respectively. Thus, while the rate of increase in Urban Districts has declined from 15·2 to 11·1 per cent., the rate of increase in Rural Districts has risen from 2·9 to 10·2 per cent. It should be pointed out, however, that the rates in the last decennium represent an actual increase of 2,811,818 persons in the Urban, and of only 730,831 persons in the Rural Districts.

At the date of the issue of the Report on the census of 1891 there were 1,011 Urban Districts; at the census of 1901 the number had increased to 1,122, and in 1911 to 1,137; these 1,137 districts may be grouped by the numbers of their populations as shown in the following table, which gives the populations of the areas as constituted in 1911 :—

In the Reports on the censuses of 1891 and 1901 tables were published showing the division of the population into Urban and Rural portions upon three different bases. Comparison was made in the first place between the population enumerated in Urban and that enumerated in Rural Districts as constituted at the time of the census; in the second comparison the inhabitants of Urban Districts containing less than 5,000 population were transferred from the urban to the rural section; and in the third comparison the same transfer was made in the case of all Urban Districts of less than 10,000 population. The reason for the second and third groupings was that small Urban Districts often depend upon rural industry, being in many cases small towns in the midst of agricultural areas on which they are dependent for their maintenance as business centres. It will be convenient to continue the use of these three bases of comparison, although it may be remarked that if many small Urban Districts are dependent upon agriculture, a number of Rural Districts have ceased, so far as the greater portion of their population is concerned, to be rural except in name, the inhabitants living under urban conditions and being occupied in pursuits unconnected with agriculture, as in the case of many mining districts.

The above table shows that there were 406 Urban Districts (with an aggregate population 1,201,068) of under 5,000 population, and 255 (with an aggregate population 1,832,364) with populations of 5,000 and under 10,000. If, therefore, we include in the rural section, firstly, all Urban Districts not exceeding 5,000 population, and secondly, all Urban Districts not exceeding 10,000 population, leaving all the more populous towns to constitute the urban section, we arrive at the following results:—

Rural Districts, including Towns with populations not exceeding 10,000 ...	9,920,297	10,940,988	10·3	30·5	30·3

It will be seen from the above statement that by including in the rural areas the towns with populations of less than 10,000 the urban element in the population is reduced from 78 to 70 per cent., and the rural element is increased from 22 to 30 per cent.

In order to show in what parts of the country the increase in rural population has occurred the following table has been constructed; in the first column the increase or decrease per cent. of population is given in the aggregate Rural Districts of each Administrative County, in the second column a similar calculation is made with the line drawn at Urban Districts of less than 5,000 inhabitants, and in the third column with Urban Districts of less than 10,000 inhabitants.

If we select from this table those counties that show a decrease in column 3 we obtain the following list of decreases in the aggregate population of Rural Districts and small towns :—

Cardiganshire ...	1·96	Cumberland ...	0·19
Carnarvonshire ...	1·68
Westmorland ...	1·36	Aggregate of ten Counties...	1·63

* See note * on page xiv.

It thus appears that of the ten counties with declining rural populations in this sense, 6 are Welsh and 4 are English, and that all are numerically insignificant, for the aggregate population of these counties was no more than 917,646.

As compared with the list given at the previous census there are only ten counties in the present list, against twenty-three in that of 1901. Of the ten counties in the present list all except two (Radnorshire* and Carnarvonshire) showed declining rural populations in the previous intercensal period, but the rates of decrease in 1891-1901 were, except in the case of Merionethshire, considerably in excess of the rates in 1901-1911.

Another method by which we may examine the changes in the rural population is that of taking the Registration Districts or Poor Law Unions which are still entirely rural, that is to say, districts which contain absolutely no Urban Districts, or parts of Urban Districts, however small. Amongst the 635 Registration Districts there are 105 which at the census of 1911 were entirely rural, and the aggregate population of which was 1,306,471. Their population at each census back to 1801 has been approximately ascertained as follows:—

Census Year.	Population.	Increase (+) or Decrease (—) per cent. in Intercensal Period.	Census Year.	Population.	Increase (+) or Decrease (—) per cent. in Intercensal Period.
1801	852,313	—	1861	1,207,580	— 0·41
1811	913,713	+ 7·20	1871	1,202,499	— 0·42
1821	1,044,331	+ 14·30	1881	1,187,124	— 1·28
1831	1,115,641	+ 6·83	1891	1,174,958	— 1·02
1841	1,181,758	+ 5·93	1901	1,189,713	+ 1·26
1851	1,212,548	+ 2·61	1911	1,306,471	+ 9·81

It will be observed from the above table that the decrease of population in these Rural Districts, which first manifested itself in the ten years 1851-61, continued until the last two decennia, during which there was a notable change. But, although in the last intercensal period a considerable increase of population is shown in these rural areas in the aggregate, there has, nevertheless, been a considerable drain on their natural growth of population. This will be evident from the following table, in which to the purely Rural Districts are added Registration Districts which contain only such Urban Districts as have populations of less than 10,000:—

	Population.		Increase of Population.	Excess of Births over Deaths.	Loss by Migration.	Loss by Migration [†] per cent.	Gain per cent. by Excess of Births over Deaths, or Natural Increase.
	1901.	1911.

230 Registration Districts con- taining Urban Districts under 10,000 population only ...	1,151,562	1,379,134	227,572	393,764	— 166,192	— 4·0	+ 9·0
Total of 335 Registration Dis- tricts	5,341,275	5,685,605	344,330	521,184	— 176,854	— 3·3	+ 9·2
Remainder of England and Wales	27,186,568	30,384,887	3,198,319	3,523,463	— 325,144	— 1·2	+ 11·6

Thus, in this rural population of over five and a half millions, the natural growth of the population by excess of births over deaths was, in the ten years preceding the census of 1911, 521,184, whereas the actual increase of population was only 344,330, the loss by migration being 176,854, equal to 3·3 per cent. of the population of 1901.

As already stated, the completion of the tabulation of the occupational returns will probably throw further light on the causes of the general increase of population in rural districts in the last intercensal period; in the meantime, however, inquiries on the subject have been addressed to the local registration officers, in the case of all rural parishes which showed large increases of population. The registrars were

† The term migration here includes movement of population between the districts in question and the remainder of England and Wales as well as migration to or from foreign parts. The loss by migration is arrived at by the deduction of actual from natural increase of population.

asked to state to what causes in their opinion the growth of population was due; the replies to these inquiries have been summarised as follows:—

No. of Parishes.	Reported causes of Increase in Population.	Population.		Increase of Population in Intercensal Period.
		1901.	1911.
16	Agricultural Development, Small Holdings, Fruit Farming, Market Gardening, &c.	10,860	15,639	4,779
296	Residential Development, owing to proximity to towns, increased travelling facilities, &c. ...	418,808	656,501	237,693
142	Colliery Development	292,455	493,816	201,361
58	Manufacturing Development	96,575	149,589	53,014
59	Erection of Institutions	61,005	107,548	46,543
10	Miscellaneous... ..	8,863	14,624	5,761
581		888,566	1,437,717	549,151

From the above analysis it will be seen that in 581 rural parishes the aggregate increase in population amounted to 549,151, and that of this increase less than one per cent. is stated to be due to agricultural development, while 46 per cent. is stated to be due to mining and manufacturing development, 43 per cent. to residential development, owing to the proximity to large towns, increased travelling facilities, &c., and 8 per cent. to the erection of institutions in rural parishes. The above inquiry has dealt, though naturally in a summary fashion, with a large proportion of the increase in the rural population, for the increase in the aggregate of the 657 Rural Districts in England and Wales amounted to only 730,831 in the last intercensal period (see page xvi), and the results tabulated above appear to show that the growth is due much more largely to residential and industrial development than to any change in agricultural conditions.

London and the Great Towns.—Among the 1,137 Urban Districts are 97 (including London as one district), each of which had in 1911 a population exceeding 50,000.

In the following table these towns are arranged in the order of their populations in 1911. All the population figures relate to the towns as constituted in 1911.

Since the date of the census changes have also taken place in the boundaries of the County Boroughs of Bath, Bury, Burnley, Reading, Sheffield and Southport; for particulars of these changes see notes to Table 10.

Of these 97 towns 52 showed increases in excess of 10 per cent., the largest increases being in Southend on Sea (117·3), Ilford (89·6), Ealing (85·3), Acton (52·3), Coventry (52·0), Wallasey (46·5), and King's Norton and Northfield (42·1). A number of the towns showing the largest increases are included in "Greater London" (see the analysis of the population of the "Outer Ring" on page xxiv), and Southend on Sea may almost be regarded as one of London's eastern suburbs. In 41 towns the rate of increase was less than 10 per cent.: these include some of the largest towns, such as West Ham (8·1), Liverpool (6·0), Bristol (5·3), Leeds (3·9), and Birmingham (0·5). The remaining four towns actually declined in population, viz.: London (0·3), Aston Manor (3·0), Halifax (3·2), and Hastings (6·7).

A remarkable feature of the table is the decline in the rate of growth as compared with that in the ten years from 1891 to 1901. The population of the 97 towns in the aggregate increased in the period 1901–1911 by 8·3 per cent. as compared with 15·3 in the preceding period. In the case of 18 towns only was the rate of increase higher in the second period; of these Coventry and Swansea are striking examples. On the other hand, West Hartlepool, Plymouth, Reading, East Ham, Walthamstow, and Ilford are prominent instances of the prevalent tendency.

It is obvious that a falling-off in the rate of increase, or even an actual diminution of the population resident within the limits of a town, does not necessarily imply any corresponding decline in its prosperity. Unless the boundaries of the town are periodically adjusted, the relation between its area and its population must constantly alter as the latter increases. Thus, as the population resident within the boundaries of the town approaches more and more nearly that density which under the local circumstances may be regarded as the point of saturation, the tendency is for further increase to slacken within, and probably to accelerate without, the town limits, simply because there is less and less room left within for new buildings. This tendency has been markedly accentuated in the past decennium by the provision of improved means of transportation, enabling the city worker to enjoy the advantages of residence outside the city limits. If at the same time overcrowded slum areas are rebuilt with more generous provision of light and air, and if residences are, owing to increasing site value, replaced by railways, warehouses and business premises in the central portion of the town, it may well be that even an actual decrease in population represents not decrease, but increase of the town's prosperity. The growth of large urban communities can only be measured by considering jointly the population of the central area and of all its suburbs, whether the latter do or do not happen to be under the same local government as the central area.

The cases of Birmingham, Liverpool and Manchester illustrate this. The population of the city of Birmingham, as constituted at the date of the census of 1911, was 525,833, an increase of 0·5 per cent. on the numbers returned at the census of 1901. Since the taking of the census, the Provisional Order for the extension of the city has been confirmed by Parliament, and the population of the whole of the area now included within the new city amounts to 840,202; at the census of 1901, 759,063 persons were enumerated within the same area. The rate of increase within the limits of the city as extended is therefore 10·7 per cent.

The population of the City of Liverpool, as constituted at the date of the census of 1911, was 746,421, an increase of 6·0 per cent. on the numbers returned at the enumeration of 1901. Within an area comprising the City of Liverpool, the County Boroughs of Bootle and Birkenhead, the Municipal Borough of Wallasey, the Urban Districts of Litherland, Waterloo with Seaforth, Great Crosby, Little Crosby, Higher Bebington, and Lower Bebington, and the Civil Parish of West Derby Rural, no fewer than 1,095,344 persons were enumerated, showing an increase of 112,612 in the decennium, or 11·5 per cent., nearly double the rate recorded for the city alone.

During the past intercensal period, the City of Manchester had been extended by the addition of the Urban Districts of Moss Side, Withington, Gorton, and Levenshulme, and part of Prestwich. The population of the city as constituted in 1911 was 714,333; this total shows an increase of 69,460, or 10·3 per cent. on the numbers returned at the preceding census. If, however, we take the city boundaries as constituted in 1901, the increase of population in the past intercensal period amounted to only 24,699 persons, or 4·5 per cent.

London.—Reference to Table 23 will show that the population of the area now covered by the Administrative County of London had increased in the 100 years 1801–1901 from 959,310 to 4,536,267. The population enumerated at the census of 1911 numbered 4,521,685, showing for the first time an actual decrease.

In the decennium 1871–1881 the rate of increase had been 17·4 per cent., in the decennium 1881–1891 it fell to 10·4 per cent., in the decennium 1891–1901 it further fell to 7·3 per cent., and in the last intercensal period an actual decrease of 0·3 per cent. took place.

Table O shows the population enumerated at the three past censuses in the Administrative County of London, in each Metropolitan Borough and in the City of London; and also the rates of increase and decrease in the two intercensal periods. The figures for 1891 and 1901 relate to the Boroughs as constituted in 1911.

London furnishes the most remarkable instance of decline of population in the central portions of large cities. Attention has been drawn in previous census reports to the gradual decentralisation of its population: it was pointed out that in the centre of London was a group of districts in which the population had long been decreasing, owing to the substitution of business premises, warehouses, &c., for dwelling-houses, that around this central area was a circle of districts the population of which was increasing, the increase, generally speaking, being more marked in the districts furthest removed from the centre, and that outside the County of London was a zone of suburban districts in which the population was increasing with extraordinary rapidity.

The process of decentralisation, which at first affected the inner districts of London only, has gradually affected a much wider area until in 1911 only nine of the 28 Metropolitan Boroughs show an increase of population. These Boroughs, which it will be seen are mainly those farthest removed from the centre, are Camberwell, Fulham, Greenwich, Hackney, Hammersmith, Hampstead, Lewisham, Wandsworth, and Woolwich.

* The City of London comprises an area of 675 acres, which is mainly covered by buildings used for business and not for residential purposes. The census included those persons only who passed the night of the census within the city boundaries and did not take account of the citizens engaged in the city in the daytime. It has been customary for the County Purposes Committee of the Corporation to supplement the ordinary census by the taking of a special day census. This special census took place on this occasion on 25th April, 1911, and the returns showed that 364,061 persons were engaged in the day time within the "walls and liberties" of the city.

Greater London and the Outer Ring.—"Greater London" is a term used to describe the area covered by the Metropolitan and City of London Police Districts; it contains besides the Administrative County of London, a wide belt of suburban towns and districts, designated for convenience the "Outer Ring." It will be seen from the subjoined table that the inhabitants of Greater London now exceed seven and a quarter millions, and although the growth in the decennium 1901-1911 was less than in the preceding decennia, it amounted to nearly 670,000 persons, or 10·2 per cent.

In the Outer Ring the increase of population had been about 50 per cent. in each of the three intercensal periods between 1861 and 1891, and 45 per cent. in the period 1891-1901. In the last intercensal period it fell to 33 per cent.; this, however, represents a numerical addition of 684,538 persons, an addition greater than that in any previous intercensal period, and considerably more than the entire population of the Outer Ring fifty years ago.

Table Q on the previous page shows the constitution of the "Outer Ring" by Urban and Rural Districts at each of the last three censuses, showing separately those Urban Districts with populations in excess of 20,000 in 1911. The figures relate to the areas as constituted at the date of the census of 1911.

Analysis of the population returns for the "Outer Ring" shows that while the populations in the towns increased from 1,920,154 in 1901 to 2,549,908 in 1911, the population in the rural portion of the "Outer Ring" increased from 124,981 to 179,765; of this increase of 54,784 no less than 14,591 occurred in the rural parish of Mitcham.

Sex Proportions.—Of the 36,070,492 persons enumerated in England and Wales in 1911, 17,445,608 were males and 18,624,884 were females. These numbers give an excess of 1,179,276 females over males, which would, however, be somewhat reduced if we could include in the reckoning the English and Welsh members of the Army, Navy and Merchant Service and mercantile community temporarily absent abroad and also the numbers of fishermen absent at sea on the night of the census.

The number of females to 1,000 males enumerated at each successive census was as follows :—

Year.	Number of Females to 1,000 Males.	Year.	Number of Females to 1,000 Males.
1801	1,057	1861	1,053
1811	1,054	1871	1,054
1821	1,036	1881	1,055
1831	1,040	1891	1,064
1841	1,046	1901	1,068
1851	1,042	1911	1,068

The decrease in female preponderance from 1,057 in 1801, and 1,054 in 1811 to 1,036 in 1821, was no doubt due to diminution after the war of the large forces which had been serving outside the country at the two earlier dates. Since 1821 this preponderance has on the whole steadily increased.

The proportion in 1911 was the same as in 1901, viz., 1,068 to 1,000, but when due allowance is made for the exceptional number of males absent on military service in South Africa in the last-named year there is no doubt that the real proportion of females to males in the population was somewhat lower in 1901 than in 1911. The alteration in proportion may best be gauged by comparing 1911 with 1891.

In order to arrive at a more accurate comparison between the numbers of the two sexes, account should be taken, if possible, of the numbers of men temporarily absent abroad as soldiers or seamen or for business purposes, and also of the number of fishermen who were at sea on the night of the census. It should be observed, however, that the enumerated population at home temporarily includes some soldiers and sailors belonging to Scotland or Ireland as well as foreign sailors and business representatives. It would be impossible to strike an accurate balance between these several groups; indeed, as regards the number of persons temporarily absent from the country for business purposes no basis exists for even an approximate estimate.

The data are not at present available from which a table can be constructed to show the numbers of the Army, Navy, and Mercantile Marine that should be respectively added to and subtracted from the enumerated population in order to arrive at a nearer approximation of the total male population belonging to England and Wales, but it may be noted that at the census of 1901 it was estimated that on this account the enumerated male population should be corrected by the net addition of 310,000 males, which reduced the proportion of females to 1,000 males from 1,068 to 1,050.

Although more boys are born than girls (the average proportion in England and Wales during the last 50 years was 1,041 boys to 1,000 girls), this initial predominance of the male sex is soon lost, and the relative proportions of the sexes transposed, as the mortality of males is greater than that of females in infancy and in adult life. This natural excess of females is further accentuated by the temporary absence of men abroad serving as soldiers or seamen, &c., and by the great excess of the emigration of males over females.

The sex proportions of the population vary widely in different parts of the country, and these local variations are determined in the main by social and industrial conditions. The following is a list of Administrative Counties (together with their associated County Boroughs) in which proportions of females to 1,000 males were lowest and highest respectively :—

It will be observed that most of the counties in which the female proportion was at its lowest were mining counties, that industry having the tendency to draw large numbers of single men into its ranks; while conspicuous among those in which the female sex was most predominant were Sussex, Surrey, Middlesex, London and the Isle of Wight, which may be described as residential counties in which large numbers of domestic servants are employed, and to which the unoccupied classes (preponderantly female) resort for residence.

Sex Proportions in other Countries.—The numbers of males and females enumerated at the recent censuses in the populations of the three divisions of the United Kingdom and in a number of other countries are shown in the following statement, from which it will be seen how widely the sex proportions vary :—

Institutions.—The numbers of persons enumerated in certain kinds of public institutions are shown in Tables 16 and 17. The institutions dealt with in these tables include Workhouse Establishments, Lunatic and Imbecile Asylums, Prisons, Hospitals, Certified Reformatory and Industrial Schools, Certified Poor Law Schools, and Inebriate Retreats and Reformatories. Speaking generally the proportion of the institutional to the total population tends to increase. Thus the proportion of hospital inmates, which at the Census of 1851 was 42 per 100,000, rose to 52 in 1861, 86 in 1871, 93 in 1881, 95 in 1891, 120 in 1901, and 149 in 1911. The following statement gives in summary form the proportions at the last three Censuses of those institutions for which the figures are available :—

	Proportions of Inmates (excluding officials and their families) to 100,000 population.
	1891.	1901.	1911.
Workhouse Establishments	630	641	723
Metropolitan Asylums Board Hospitals		9	14
Do. Imbecile Asylums	219	18	20
Lunatic Asylums (Public and Private)		260	300
Prisons	60	54	54
Hospitals	95	120	149
Certified Reformatory and Industrial Schools	63	59	51

As regards the numbers of males and females respectively in these institutions it may be observed that in Prisons there were only 139 females to 1,000 males; in Certified Reformatory Industrial Schools the ratio was 278 to 1,000; and in Workhouse Establishments 655 to 1,000. In Hospitals the two sexes were nearly equal, while in Lunatic Asylums there was an excess of females (1,140 to 1,000 males); and in Certified Inebriate Reformatories and Retreats out of 1,357 inmates on Census night only 304 were males.

CENSUS OF ENGLAND AND WALES, 1911.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

- (1) Unless otherwise stated, the population figures both for 1901 and 1911, given throughout the tables, relate to the areas as constituted at the latter date.
- (2) Particulars of changes in area that have taken place since the date of the Census are, as far as possible, shown in footnotes.
- (3) The acreage quoted in the several Tables is that of land and inland water together, exclusive of tidal water and foreshore; the figures are derived from the latest returns furnished by the Director-General of Ordnance Surveys.
- (4) The spelling of the names of civil parishes in these Tables follows, with few exceptions, that adopted by the Ordnance Survey Department.
- (5) Persons on board vessels which were in the ports of England and Wales on the night of Sunday, April 2nd, 1911, or arrived there on the following day are, with certain exceptions, included in the population for the country as a whole, and are also distributed, with as much accuracy as the information obtained allows, to the several local areas. Fishermen who were at sea on the night of the Census and did not arrive in port on Monday, April 3rd, are not included in the returns of Population. The approximate numbers of absent fishermen on vessels belonging to the several ports, are given in Table 27.
- (6) The numbers of "Families or Separate Occupiers" given throughout these Tables are equivalent to the numbers of Schedules collected.

NOTE.—The population at each Census 1801 to 1831 is exclusive of the Army, Royal Navy, and Merchant Service at home and abroad; for 1841 the population includes the Army at home, men on shore belonging to the Royal Navy or to the Merchant Service, and, in a few cases, persons on board vessels in harbours; the population at each Census 1851 to 1911 includes the Army at home, men on shore belonging to the Royal Navy or to the Merchant Service, and all persons on board vessels in port on Census night or arriving the following day.

* In computing the decennial rate of increase the varying lengths of the intercensal periods have been taken into account, and the rates for the periods 1831–1841 and 1841–1851 have been further corrected by the exclusion of the Army, Navy, and Merchant Service from the population for 1841, and of the persons on board vessels from the population for 1851.

† In computing the proportion of females to males, 1801–1831, the following estimate of the numbers of men in the Army, Navy, and Merchant Service at home has been adopted:—

Year	1801.	1811.	1821.	1831.

TABLE 2.—ENGLAND AND WALES.—POPULATION, exclusive of the ARMY, ROYAL NAVY and MARINES, and MERCHANT SEAMEN, SERVING ABROAD, estimated to the MIDDLE of each YEAR 1801 to 1911.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

(1) The population for each year from 1801 to 1840 was estimated from the probable increase deduced from the annual excess of Baptisms over Burials, and from the population enumerated at each Census (see Census Report for 1851, Vol. 1, p. xxix). From 1841 to 1911, the population for each year has been estimated from the rates of increase in the various intercensal periods as shown by the several enumerations.

* The County Boroughs are generally included with those Counties in which, for the purposes of the Local Government Act, they are deemed to be situated. The County Boroughs of Bristol, Great Yarmouth, and Stockport, each of which is deemed to be in two Counties, are, however, wholly included in Gloucestershire, Norfolk and Cheshire respectively, these being the Counties in which the populations of the several Boroughs are mainly included. The County Borough of York, which is deemed to be situated in each of the three Ridings of Yorkshire, is, however, shown separately.

TABLE 8.—URBAN DISTRICTS, INCLUDING COUNTY AND OTHER MUNICIPAL BOROUGHES.—AREA; FAMILIES OR SEPARATE OCCUPIERS 1901 AND 1911; POPULATION (PERSONS, MALES, FEMALES) 1901 AND 1911; AND INCREASE OR DECREASE PER CENT. IN POPULATION, 1901-11.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

(1) The Urban Districts are arranged alphabetically, those which are County or Municipal Boroughs being indicated by the letters C.B. or M.B.

(2) Urban Districts marked * have been created, the boundaries of those marked † have been altered and the names of those marked ‡ have been changed since the Census of 1901; for particulars of the changes see footnotes to Table 10.

(3) The population figures, both for 1901 and 1911, relate to the areas as constituted at the latter date.

(4) In the Report on the Census of 1901 the corresponding Table is numbered 11 in the Summary Volume.

^a By an Order of the Southampton County Council, dated 20th May, 1901, the name of New Winchester Rural District was changed to Winchester Rural District.

^b By the Birmingham (Extension) Order, 1911, Birmingham County Borough was extended to include Yardley Rural District on the 9th November, 1911.

TABLE 10.—ADMINISTRATIVE COUNTIES, URBAN DISTRICTS (INCLUDING COUNTY AND OTHER MUNICIPAL BOROUGH) WITH THEIR CONSTITUENT CIVIL PARISHES AND WARDS, AND RURAL DISTRICTS WITH THEIR CONSTITUENT CIVIL PARISHES; AREA; FAMILIES OR SEPARATE OCCUPIERS, AND POPULATION, 1901 AND 1911; AND POPULATION ENUMERATED IN INSTITUTIONS, LARGE ESTABLISHMENTS, VESSELS, &c., 1911.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

(1) The Counties are arranged in alphabetical order and the Urban and Rural Districts are arranged in alphabetical order under the Counties in which they are situated; the English Counties appear on pages 60 to 396, and the Welsh on pages 397 to 427. The letters U.D., R.D., C.B., M.B., and C.P. respectively denote Urban District, Rural District, County Borough, Municipal Borough and Civil Parish, and the numbers in parenthesis following the names of the Civil Parishes refer to the Registration Districts and Sub-districts, as constituted on Census day, within which the several parishes are situated (see Table 5, Vol. 2).

(2) The figures in Column 10 represent the population enumerated:—

(a) In Military and Naval Barracks, Workhouse Establishments, Hospitals, Lunatic Asylums, Prisons, and Certified Reformatory and Industrial Schools, &c. (see Tables 16 to 20).

(b) In other Establishments, including private households, of which the number of inmates exceeded 15.

(c) On board Vessels (see Table 21).

(d) In Barns, Sheds, Caravans, &c., or in the Open Air (see Table 22).

(3) The figures in Columns 3, 4, and 9 correspond to the total number of schedules collected. If the entries in Columns 9 and 10 be deducted from those in Columns 4 and 6 respectively, the resultant figures, relating, as they do, exclusively to "families" each containing no more than 15 persons, may be taken as a rough indication of the number of private families and of persons comprising such families. A closer approximation to the number of private families in the larger areas will be found in the Tables relating to Tenements, to be published in another volume.

(4) Alterations have been made in the boundaries of all counties and civil parishes marked + between the Censuses of 1901 and 1911; for particulars of such alterations, see Table 13. In all cases of alterations of boundary the figures both for 1901 and 1911 relate to the new area.

(5) Owing to the numerous changes that have taken place in the boundaries of Wards in the intercensal period, comparative figures for 1901 cannot be given.

(6) In the Report on the Census of 1901 the corresponding Tables are numbered 9 and 10 in the several County Volumes.

* By the Reading (Extension) Order, 1911, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1911, part of Bradfield Rural District (viz., parts of Theale and Tilehurst Civil Parishes) was transferred to Reading County Borough. The figures at the date of the Census for the Rural District and Civil Parishes as altered were as follows:—

Bradfield R.D.	52,878	2,909	3,265	13,152	14,349	7,115	7,234	23	666
Civil Parishes:

Tilehurst	1,548	101	109	465	480	227	253	1	13

a The large increase in the population of Radley Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the fact that the masters and scholars of St. Peter's College had not left for the Easter vacation as in 1901.

By Local Government Board Order No. 55,186, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1911, part of Wycombe Rural District (viz., part of Wendover Civil Parish) was transferred to Amersham Rural District (and to Lee Civil Parish).

^a The large increase in the population of Cherry Hinton and Grantchester Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to its proximity to Cambridge.

^b The large increase in the population of Histon Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the development of the jam-making industry.

* This area (containing 0.434 acres) which was formerly a detached part of Over, became part of Marton Civil Parish under the provisions of the Divided Parishes Act, 1882, but was not separated from Winsford Urban District, and therefore became a separate Parish under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1894.

† This area (containing 0.191 acres), which was formerly a detached part of Bollington Civil Parish, being wholly surrounded by Bowdon Civil Parish, became part of that Parish under the provisions of the Divided Parishes Act of 1882; it was not added to Bowdon Urban District and therefore became a separate Parish under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1894.

a The large increase in the population of Marshall cum Warford Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the establishment of the David Lewis Epileptic Colony (see Table 17).

b The large increase in the population of Partington Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the number of persons on board vessels in the docks situated in the parish.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 54,364, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1910, part of Chester Rural District (viz., Great Stanney and Stanlow Civil Parishes) was transferred to Ellesmere Port and Whithy Urban District.

a The large increase in the population of Bache Civil Parish is due to the inclusion in 1911 of part of the Chester County Lunatic Asylum (see Table 17); in 1901 all the inmates of this Asylum were included in the population of Upton by Chester Civil Parish.

b The large increase in the population of Newton by Chester Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its proximity to the City of Chester.

c The large increase in the population of Bradwall Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the development of motor-wagon works.

* This area, which was formerly a detached part of Marton Civil Parish, being wholly surrounded by Over Civil Parish, became part of that Parish, under the provisions of the Divided Parishes Act of 1882; it was not added to Winsford Urban District, and therefore became a separate Parish under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1894.

a The large increase in the population of Lostock Gt. Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the development of alkali manufacture.

b The large increase in the population of these Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to their proximity to the Town of Warrington.

c The large increase in the population of Kingswood Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the establishment of Consumption Sanatoria (see Table 17).

d The large increase in the population of Newton by Frodsham Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the establishment of a branch of the National Children's Home and Orphanage.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 42,498, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1902, Newquay Urban District (and Civil Parish) was extended to include part of St. Columb Major Rural District (viz., parts of Crancock Rural and St. Columb Minor Rural Civil Parishes).

† By Local Government Board Order No. 46,041, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1904, part of St. Germans Rural District (viz., part of Antony Civil Parish) was constituted Torpoint Urban District (and Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of Padstow Urban District is attributed mainly to the fact that a large number of fishing boats made Padstow their port of call at the time the Census was taken.

b Included in the above figures for Saltash Civil Parish are 296 persons on board H.M. Ships and 206 persons on board the Industrial School Ship, "Mount Edgcumbe."

a The large decrease in the population of Calstock Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the closing of metalliferous mines and granite quarries.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 42,498, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1902, part of St. Columb Major Rural District (viz., parts of Crantock Rural and St. Columb Minor Rural Civil Parishes) was transferred to Newquay Urban District (and Civil Parish).

† By Local Government Board Order No. 46,041, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1904, part of St. Germans Rural District (viz., part of Antony Civil Parish) was constituted Torpoint Urban District (and Civil Parish).

a The large decrease in the population of Antony Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the absence of the usual number of soldiers at the several forts.

b The large decrease in the population of Maker and Millbrook Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the inclusion in 1901 of a large number of sailors on H.M. Ships; in the former Civil Parish, 212 sailors were included at the Census of 1911, against 1,014 in 1901.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 43,157, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1901, part of Whitehaven Rural District (viz. Seascale Civil Parish) was transferred to Bootle Rural District.

a The large decrease in the population of Millom Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the removal of workmen, who, at the date of the Census, 1901, were engaged in the construction of a sea-wall : also to decline in employment at blast furnaces.

† By the Derby Corporation Act, 1901, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1901, Derby County Borough (and Civil Parish) was extended to include part of Alvaston and Boulton Urban District (and Civil Parish), and part of Shardlow Rural District (viz., parts of Chaddesden, Normanton, Osmaston and Spondon Civil Parishes).

a The large increase in the population of Long Eaton Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the development of the lace-making industry.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 57,677, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1912, part of Byers Green Civil Parish was transferred to Newfield Civil Parish. The figures at the date of the Census for the Civil Parishes as altered were as follows:—

Byers Green	(547: 1)	935	454	495	2,211	2,349	1,217	1,132	4	5
Newfield	"	341	209	245	1,165	1,340	705	635	—	—

a The large increase in the population of these Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to colliery development.

b The large decrease in the population of these Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the closing of collieries.

c The large increase in the population of Gainford Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the erection of a new Industrial School (see Table 17).

* By the South Shields (Extension) Order, 1901, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1901, part of South Shields Rural District (viz., part of Harton Civil Parish) was transferred to South Shields County Borough (and Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of Chilton and Ferryhill Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to colliery developments.

b The large increase in the population of these Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to their proximity to South Shields and Sunderland; in Whitburn, colliery development has also been a contributory cause.

c The large increase in the population of Norton and Preston upon Tees Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to their development as residential suburbs of Stockton on Tees.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 46,157, which came into operation on the 31st March, 1904, part of Romford Rural District (viz., part of Great Warley Civil Parish) was transferred to Billericay Rural District (and to South Weald Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of Little Thurrock Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its proximity to the town of Grays Thurrock.

b The large increase in the population of Stifford Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the erection of the Steney Union Cottage Homes (see Table 17).

c The population in 1911 of West Thurrock Civil Parish includes 295 persons on board a Reformatory School Ship (see Table 17).

d The large increase in the population of Hornchurch Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the establishment of an office appliances factory.

e The large increase in the population of Upminster Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its development as a "garden city."

* By Local Government Board Order No. 42,991, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1901, part of Tendring Rural District viz., Frinton (Civil Parish) was constituted Frinton on Sea Urban District.

a The large increase in the population of Ramsey Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the development of Harwich as a Naval Port. The population of the Parish in 1911 includes 331 persons on board H.M. Ships and 501 persons on other vessels.

* By the Bristol Docks and Railways Act, 1901, and the Bristol Corporation Act, 1902, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1901, and the 1st October, 1902, respectively, parts of Barton Regis Rural District (viz., parts of Henbury and Shirehampton Civil Parishes) were transferred to Bristol County Borough (and Civil Parish); and by the Bristol Corporation Act, 1904, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1904, Barton Regis Rural District was abolished and its constituent Civil Parishes were distributed as follows: Shirehampton, Westbury on Trym and part of Henbury Civil Parishes to Bristol County Borough (and Civil Parish); Filton, Stoke Gifford and Winterbourne Civil Parishes to Chipping Sodbury Rural District; and the remainder of Henbury Civil Parish to Thornbury Rural District.

a The large increase in the population of Prestbury Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its proximity to the Town of Cheltenham.

a The large decrease in the population of Old Sodbury and Wapley and Codrington Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the removal of workmen engaged in railway construction works which were in progress in 1901.

b The large increase in the population of Stoke Gifford Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the establishment, since 1901, of Stoke Park Colony.

c The large decrease in the population of Winterbourne Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the removal of workmen engaged in railway construction works which were in progress in 1901 and to the decline of stone-quarrying.

† By Local Government Board Order No. 53,029, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1909, part of Hitchin Rural District (viz., part of Willian Civil Parish) was transferred to Baldock Urban District (and Civil Parish).

‡ By the Counties of Bedford and Hertford (Alteration of County Boundaries) Order, 1906, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1907, certain changes affecting small areas without population were made in the boundary of Hitchin Rural District (viz., Offley Civil Parish) and in the boundary of St. Albans Rural District (viz., Harpenden Rural Civil Parish); details of these changes will be found in Table 13.

a The large increase in the population of Knebworth Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its development as a "garden village."

b The large increase in the population of Letchworth Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its development as a "garden city."

c The large increase in the population of St. Peter Rural Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its proximity to the City of St. Albans.

* By the Dover (Extension) Order, 1903, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1903, Dover Municipal Borough and Dover Civil Parish were extended to include part of Dover Rural District (viz., part of River Civil Parish).

† The Civil Parish of Folkestone next Sandgate, although comprised in the Municipal Borough of Folkestone, also forms part of the Urban District of Sandgate. See note to Sandgate U.D.

‡ By Local Government Board Order No. 43,476, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1902, part of Bromley Rural District (viz., Fooks Cray Civil Parish) was constituted an Urban District; and by Local Government Board Order No. 54,400, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1910, Fooks Cray Urban District (and Civil Parish) was extended to include part of Bexley Urban District (and Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of Dartford Civil Parish is attributed mainly to industrial developments (iron foundry, engineering works, paper mills and chemical works) and to an increase in the number of inmates in the London County Council Asylum (see Table 17).

b The large decrease of population in Dover Castle Civil Parish is attributed mainly to a diminution in the number of military.

c The increase of population in Folkestone next Sandgate Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the erection, since 1901, of large private schools.

* By Order in Council dated 10th August, 1903, Gillingham Urban District and part of Medway Rural District (viz., Grange and Lidsing Civil Parishes) were incorporated a Municipal Borough.

† By an Order of the Kent County Council, which came into operation on the 5th November, 1907, Milton next Sittingbourne Urban District was renamed Milton Regis.

a The increase in the population of Lidsing and Gillingham Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the presence of a larger number of officers and all seamen of the Royal Navy than in 1901. The population in Gillingham Civil Parish includes 3,261 persons on board H.M. Ships.

b The population in 1911 of Margate, St. John the Baptist Civil Parish includes 902 persons on board H.M. Ships.

* By the Dover (Extension) Order, 1903, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1903, part of Dover Rural District (viz., part of River Civil Parish) was transferred to Dover Municipal Borough and to Dover Civil Parish.

† By Local Government Order No. 41,388, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1901, part of Eastry Rural District (viz., part of Great Mongeham Civil Parish) was transferred to Walmer Urban District (and Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of Guston Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the opening, since 1901, of the Duke of York's Military School.

b The large increase in the population of Eythorne, Sibertswold and Temple Ewell Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the development of the coal-mining industry.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 47,739, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1905, Medway Rural District was abolished and its constituent Civil Parish (viz., St. Margaret Extra) was transferred to Malling Rural District (and to Wouldham Civil Parish).

a The population in 1911 of Hoo Civil Parish includes 154 persons on board H.M. Ships.

b The large increase in the population of Garlinge Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its proximity to the Town of Margate.

† By the Liverpool (Extension) Order, 1902, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1902, Liverpool County Borough was extended to include Garston Urban District.

‡ By the Manchester Corporation Act, 1901, which came into operation on the 9th August, 1901, Manchester County Borough and South Manchester Civil Parish were extended to include part of Gorton Urban District (and Civil Parish); and by the Manchester Corporation Act, 1909, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1909, the County Borough was further extended to include the whole of the Urban District (and Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of Fleetwood Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the development of the fishing industry.

* By the Liverpool (Extension) Order, 1902, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1902, Liverpool County Borough was extended to include Garston Urban District; and by the Liverpool (Extension) Order, 1905, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1905, the County Borough was further extended to include part of Sefton Rural District (viz., Fazakerley Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of Little Crosby Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its proximity to the City of Liverpool.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 49,299, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1907, part of Worsley Urban District (and Civil Parish) was transferred to Swinton and Pendlebury Urban District and to Swinton Civil Parish.

† By the Blackburn Corporation Act, 1901, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1901, part of Blackburn Rural District (viz., parts of Livesey and Witton Civil Parishes) was transferred to Blackburn County Borough (and Civil Parish).

‡ By Local Government Board Order No. 45,918, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1904, part of Clitheroe Rural District (viz., parts of Pendleton and Wiswell Civil Parishes) was transferred to Burnley Rural District (and created part of Sabden Civil Parish); and by the Burnley (Extension) Order, 1911, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1911, part of Burnley Rural District (viz., parts of Brunshaw, Cliviger and Habergham Eaves Civil Parishes) was added to Burnley County Borough (and Civil Parish), and the remainder of Brunshaw and Cliviger Civil Parishes were united as Cliviger Civil Parish. The figures at the date of the Census for the Rural District, as thus altered, were as follows:—

Burnley R.D.	41,774	3,809	4,674	17,170	19,848	9,606	10,242	7	25

a The large increase in the population of Billington and Wilshire Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the establishment, since 1901, of an Inebriate Reformatory and an Epileptic Colony (see Table 17).

b The large increase in the population of Ramsgrave Civil Parish is attributed to its development as a residential suburb of Blackburn.

c The large increase in the population of Briercliffe Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the development of the cotton-weaving industry.

^a The large increase in the population of Barnacre with Bonds Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the presence of workmen engaged in the construction of a reservoir.

^b The large decrease in the population of Bleasdale Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the closing of the North Lancashire Reformatory for Boys.

^c The large increase in the population of Astley Civil Parish is attributed mainly to colliery development.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 46,276, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1904, part of Blaby Rural District (viz., part of Kirby Muxloe Civil Parish) was transferred to Market Bosworth Rural District (and to Rathby Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of Evington Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the erection of the Leicester Parish Infirmary (see Table 17).

b The large decrease in the population of Glen Parva Civil Parish is attributed mainly to a decrease in the number of troops stationed at the military depot (see Table 20).

c The large increase in the population of Narborough Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the erection, since 1901, of the Leicester and Rutland Counties Lunatic Asylum (see Table 17).

d The large increase in the population of Oadby Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its proximity to the town of Leicester.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 46,339, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1904, part of Horncastle Rural District (viz., part of Coningsby Civil Parish) was transferred to Sibley Rural District (and to Langville Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of these Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the presence of workmen engaged in the construction of a new Dock at Immingham; in Little Coates the increase is attributed also to the development of paper mills.

* Parts of the River Ward of Woolwich Metropolitan Borough, containing 3,086 persons in 1901 and 4,469 in 1911, are situated on the north side of the River Thames.

a The large decrease in the population of St. Mary le Strand and St. Clement Danes Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the demolition of houses in connection with the Strand improvement.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 45,585, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1903, part of St. Mellons Rural District (viz., Mynyddislwyn Civil Parish) was constituted an Urban District.

† By the Alexandra (Newport and South Wales) Docks and Railway Act, 1904, and the Newport (Monmouthshire) Improvement Act, 1876, Newport County Borough was extended (on the 1st November, 1907) to include part of St. Mellons Rural District (viz., part of Duffryn Civil Parish), and by Local Government Board Order No. 53,094, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1909, Newport Civil Parish was extended to include the part of Duffryn Civil Parish situated within the County Borough.

a The large increase in the population of Llanfrechfa Upper Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the extension of tin-plate works.

c The large increase in the population of these Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the development of the sheet-iron manufacture.

d The large increase in the population of Llanvihangel Pontypool is attributed mainly to the development of sheet-steel and tin-plate manufactures.

b The large decrease in the population of Llanvaches Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the removal of workmen who, at the date of the Census in 1901, were engaged in the construction of a reservoir.

* The figures for the Civil Parish of Thorpe next Norwich include for convenience those for an area of 2·4 acres, locally situated in the City and Civil Parish of Norwich, on which stand the Shirehall, County Police Station, &c., comprising 3 separate occupiers and 12 persons (4 males and 8 females). As some doubt existed as to the parochial status of this area the County Council of Norfolk issued an Order, on the 13th April, 1901, adding it to the Civil Parish of Thorpe next Norwich, but this Order has not been confirmed by the Local Government Board.

† By Local Government Board Order No. 44,123, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1902, part of Giltcross Rural District (viz., Bressingham, Fersfield, Roydon, Shelfanger and Winfarthing Civil Parishes) was transferred to Depwade Rural District.

* By the Norwich (Extension) Order, 1907, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1907, part of St. Faith's Rural District (viz., parts of Catton and Sprowston Civil Parishes) was transferred to Norwich County Borough (and Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of Bintree Civil Parish is attributed to the establishment of the Watt's Naval Training School.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 44,423, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1902, part of Giltcross Rural District (viz., Banham, Eccles, Kenninghall, New Buckenham, Old Buckenham, Quidenham and Wilby Civil Parishes) was transferred to Wayland Rural District.

a The large increase in the population of Kenninghall Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the opening, since 1901, of the Eastern Counties Inebriate Reformatory (see Table 17).

* These islands are stated to be extra-parochial; the entire population was enumerated in Lighthouses.

a The large decrease in the population of Rochester Ward Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the removal of workmen, who, at the date of the Census in 1901, were engaged in the construction of a reservoir.

* By the Newcastle upon Tyne (Extension) Order 1904, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1904, part of Castle Ward Rural District (viz., part of Kenton Civil Parish) was transferred to Newcastle upon Tyne County Borough (and to St. Andrew Civil Parish).

a The large decrease in the population of Troughend Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the removal of workmen, who, at the date of the Census in 1901, were engaged in the construction of a reservoir.

c The large increase in the population of Ponteland Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the erection of the Children's Cottage Homes (see Table 17).

* By Local Government Board Order No. 52,286, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1909, part of Morpeth Rural District (viz., part of North Seaton Civil Parish) was transferred to Ashington Urban District (and to Hirst Civil Parish), and by Local Government Board Order No. 54,217, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1910, part of the same Rural District (viz., part of North Seaton Civil Parish) was transferred to Newbigin by the Sea Urban District (and Civil Parish).

* By an Order of the Nottinghamshire County Council, which came into operation on the 30th April, 1907, Hucknall under Huthwaite Urban District was renamed Huthwaite.

a The large increase in the population of Beeston Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the establishment, since 1901, of a telephone manufacturing company.

b The large increase in the population of Carlton Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its proximity to the City of Nottingham.

c The large increase in the population of Hucknall under Huthwaite Civil Parish is attributed mainly to colliery development, and hosiery manufacture.

d The large increase in the population of Kirkby in Ashfield Civil Parish is attributed mainly to colliery development.

* By the Reading (Extension) Order, 1911, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1911, Henley Rural District (and Eye and Dunsden Civil Parish) was extended to include the part of Caversham Urban District and Civil Parish not included in Reading County Borough. The figures at the date of the Census for the Rural District of Eye and Dunsden Civil Parish as altered were as follows:—

Henley R.D.	46,271	2,129	2,493	9,205	10,229	4,966	5,263	24	225
Civil Parishes:
Eye and Dunsden	(150: 2) 4,089	217	303	1,025	1,246	607	639	—	—

a The large increase in the population of Culham Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the fact that the students of Culham Training College had not left for the Easter vacation as in 1901.

* By the Ludlow (Extension) Order, 1901, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1901, Ludlow Municipal Borough (and Civil Parish) was extended to include part of Ludlow Rural District (viz., Ludlow Castle Civil Parish and parts of East Hamlet and Ludford Civil Parishes).

a The large increase in the population of Church Stretton Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its development as a health resort.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 43,667, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1902, part of Williton Rural District (viz., part of St. Decumanus Civil Parish) was constituted Watchet Urban District (and Civil Parish).

† By Local Government Board Order No. 42,992, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1902, Weston super Mare Urban District (and Civil Parish) was extended to include part of Axbridge Rural District (viz., part of Kewstoke Civil Parish).

‡ By the Yeovil (Extension) Order, 1903, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1903, Yeovil Municipal Borough (and Civil Parish) was extended to include part of Yeovil Rural District (viz., parts of Preston Plucknett and Yeovil Without Civil Parishes).

a The large increase in the population of Portishead Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the establishment of the National Nautical School in place of the Training Ship "Formidable," which was enumerated in Bristol Civil Parish in 1901 (see Table 17).

* By the Bournemouth (Extension) Order, 1901, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1901, Bournemouth County Borough was extended to include Pokesdown and Winton Urban Districts and part of Christchurch Rural District (viz., parts of Holdenhurst and Southbourne Civil Parishes).

† By the Christchurch (Extension) Order, 1911, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1912, Christchurch Municipal Borough (and Civil Parish) was extended to include part of Christchurch Rural District (viz., parts of Highcliffe and Hurn Civil Parishes), and the extended Borough was divided into five Wards. The figures at the date of the Census for the Municipal Borough and Civil Parish as extended and the Wards were as follows:—

‡ By Local Government Board Order No. 46,259, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1904, part of Hartley Wintney Rural District (viz., Fleet Civil Parish) was constituted an Urban District.

§ By Local Government Board Order No. 43,720, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1902, Havant Urban District (and Civil Parish) was extended to include part of Warblington Urban District (and Civil Parish); and by Local Government Board Order No. 43,721, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1902, part of Havant Urban District (and Civil Parish) was transferred to Havant Rural District and created North Havant Civil Parish.

a The large increase in the population of these Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the removal from Nine Elms, London, of the Engine Works of the London and South Western Railway Company, in 1909.

b The population in 1911 of Alverstoke Civil Parish includes 864 persons on board H.M. Ships.

* By the Bournemouth (Extension) Order, 1901, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1901, Bournemouth County Borough was extended to include Pokesdown Urban District (and Civil Parish).

† By the Portsmouth (Extension) Order, 1904, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1904, Portsmouth County Borough (and Civil Parish) was extended to include part of Fareham Rural District (viz., part of Cosham Civil Parish).

‡ By Local Government Board Order No. 53,725, which came into operation on the 31st March, 1912, the constituent Civil Parishes of Southampton County Borough were united as Southampton Civil Parish.

a The large increase in the population of Itchen Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the extension of Southampton Docks and to the development of shipbuilding.

b The populations in 1911 of Portsmouth and Southampton St. Mary Civil Parishes include 9,034 and 168 persons respectively, on board H.M. Ships. In the former parish are included the figures for the "Spithead Forts," which contained 54 persons at the date of the Census.

c The large increase in the population of Shirley Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the removal from Liverpool of the headquarters of the White Star Line.

b The large increase in the population of Headley Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the occupation, since 1901, of Bordon Military Camp (see Table 20).

c The large increase in the population of Selborne Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its proximity to Bordon Military Camp.

d The large increase in the population of Shipton Bellinger Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its proximity to the Military Barracks at South Tidworth.

e The large increase in the population of South Tidworth Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the occupation, since 1901, of the Military Barracks (see Table 20).

* By Local Government Board Order No. 43,817, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1904, Smallthorne Urban District was extended to include part of Wolstanton Rural District (viz., Milton and part of Chell Civil Parishes); and by the Hanley (Extension) Order, 1905, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1905, Hanley County Borough was extended to include part of Smallthorne Urban District (viz., part of Milton Civil Parish).

† By the County Borough of Smethwick Order, 1906, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1907, Smethwick Municipal Borough was created a County Borough.

‡ By the Borough of Stoke on Trent Order, 1908, which came into operation on the 31st March, 1910, Hanley County Borough, Burslem, Longton and Stoke on Trent Municipal Boroughs, and Tunstall and part of Fenton Urban Districts were united to form Stoke on Trent County Borough.

α This area (0.42 of an acre) is stated by the Ordnance Survey Department to form part of Stoke upon Trent Civil Parish; it was, however, not included in the new County Borough of Stoke on Trent which was created by the Borough of Stoke on Trent Order, 1908. It is said to be rated to the Municipal Borough of Newcastle under Lyme, and is therefore shown for convenience in the Tables as in that Borough for both Municipal and Parliamentary purposes. The separate occupiers and population in 1901 are included with those for Newcastle under Lyme Civil Parish.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 45,965, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1904, part of Mutford and Lothingland Rural District (viz., parts of Carlton Colville and Oulton Civil Parishes) was constituted Oulton Broad Urban District (and Civil Parish).
a The large increase in the population of Kessingland Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the growth of the fishing industry.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 54,513, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1910, part of Wangford Rural District (viz., Bungay Holy Trinity and Bungay St. Mary Civil Parishes) was constituted Bungay Urban District (and Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of Shotley Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the establishment, since 1901, of the Royal Naval Barracks (see Table 20).

† By Local Government Board Order No. 47,956, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1906, Egham Rural District was abolished and its constituent Civil Parishes (viz., Egham) was constituted an Urban District.

a The large increase in the population of Epsom Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the opening, since 1901, of new Lunatic Asylums under the control of the London County Council (see Table 17).

* By the Guildford (Extension) Order, 1904, which came into operation on the 9th November, 1904, part of Guildford Rural District (viz., parts of Artington and Stoke next Guildford Civil Parishes) was transferred to Guildford Municipal Borough.

a The large increase in the population of Chelsham Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the opening, since 1901, of the Croydon Mental Hospital (see Table 17).

b The large increase in the population of Shalford Civil Parish is attributed mainly to its proximity to the Town of Guildford.

c The large increase in the population of Merstham Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the opening, since 1901, of a Lunatic Asylum under the control of the Surrey County Council (see Table 17).

* By the Counties of East and West Sussex (Albourne) Order, 1907, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1908, Albourne Civil Parish was transferred from East Sussex to East Sussex Administrative County.

a The increase in the population of East Chiltington Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the closing, since 1901, of the Workhouse at Lewes and the transfer of the inmates to the Workhouse at East Chiltington (see Table 17).

* By the Eastbourne Corporation Act, 1910, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1911, part of Eastbourne Rural District (viz., part of Willington Civil Parish) was transferred to Eastbourne County Borough.

a The large increase in the population of Hellingly Civil Parish is mainly attributed to the establishment by the East Sussex County Council of a Lunatic Asylum in the Parish (see Table 17).

* By Local Government Board Order No. 53,467, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1909, Westbury Urban District (and Civil Parish) was extended to include part of Westbury and Whorwellsdown Rural District (viz., part of Heywood Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of Bulford and Durrington Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the formation, since 1901, of a Military Camp (see Table 20).

b The large increase in the population of Idmiston Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the development of small holdings.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 56,590, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1911, Withernsea Urban District (and Civil Parish) was extended to include part of Pattrington Rural District (viz., part of Owthorne Civil Parish). The figures at the date of the Census for the Rural District and Civil Parish, as thus altered, were as follows:—

Pattrington R.D.	61,399	1,644	1,689	7,148	7,128	3,569	3,559	18	110

† By Local Government Board Order No. 42,567, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1901, part of Pocklington Rural District (viz., part of Barnby on the Moor Civil Parish) was transferred to Pocklington Urban District (and Civil Parish).

a The large decrease in the population of Kilnsea Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the fact that in 1901 a large number of men were enumerated on barges engaged in the gravel traffic which has now ceased.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 46,506, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1904, part of Knaresborough Rural District (viz., parts of Knaresborough Outer and Scriven Civil Parishes) was transferred to Knaresborough Urban District (and Civil Parish).

a The large increase in the population of these Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to colliery development.

b The large decrease in the population of Haverah Park Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the removal of workmen, who, at the date of the Census in 1901, were engaged in the construction of a reservoir.

c The large increase in the population of Killinghall and Pannal Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to their proximity to the Town of Harrogate.

a The large decrease in the population of these Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to depression of the stone trade and to the closing of lead mines.

b The large increase in the population of Upper Stonebeck Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the presence of workmen engaged on the City of Bradford Waterworks.

c The large decrease in the population of Langsett Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the removal of workmen, who, at the date of the Census in 1901, were engaged in the construction of a reservoir.

d The large increase in the population of Glass Houghton Civil Parish is attributed mainly to colliery development.

* By the Sheffield Corporation Act, 1900, which came into operation on the 31st October, 1901, part of Rotherham Rural District (viz., parts of Catcliffe and Tinsley Civil Parishes) was transferred to Sheffield County Borough (and Civil Parish).

By the Sheffield (Extension) Order, 1911, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1912, Sheffield County Borough was extended to include part of Rotherham Rural District (viz., part of Tinsley Civil Parish); the remainder of Tinsley Civil Parish was added to Brinsworth Civil Parish. The figures at the date of the Census for the Rural District and Civil Parish, as altered, were as follows:—

Rotherham R.D.	34,441	3,354	5,577	16,982	27,849	14,810	13,039	39	245
Civil Parish:
Brinsworth	(511: 2)	1,798	160	402	953	2,082	1,138	944	16

b The large increase in the population of Tinsley Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the erection of a large steelworks and to the proximity of the parish to the City of Sheffield in which the greater part of it is now merged.

† By Local Government Board Order No. 53,399, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1909, part of Skipton Rural District (viz., part of Thornton in Craven Civil Parish) was constituted Early Urban District.

a The large decrease in the population of Conistone Cold Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the closing of a silk mill in the neighbourhood.

* The Civil Parishes of Castle Inn and Christ's College although comprised in the Urban District of Brecknock do not form part of the Municipal Borough.

† By Local Government Board Order No. 49,011, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1907, part of Builth Rural District (viz., part of Llanwrtyd Civil Parish) was constituted an Urban District.

‡ By Local Government Board Order No. 56,575, which came into operation on the 1st October, 1911, Llandefalle and Trawscod Civil Parishes were united as Llandefalle Civil Parish; the figures for the new parish at the date of the Census were as follows:—

Llandefalle (610: 4)	8,641	106	104	489	481	262	219	2	9

α The large decrease in the population of these Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the removal of workmen, who, at the date of the Census in 1901, were engaged in waterworks construction.

* The constitution of Ruthin Municipal Borough as given above is that recognised by the local authorities ; on Ordnance Maps, however, part of Ruthin Civil Parish (94 acres with no population) is shown as outside the Borough, and is designated Ruthin Rural Civil Parish.

a The large increase in the population of these Civil Parishes is attributed mainly to the increased popularity of Colwyn Bay as a seaside resort.

* By Local Government Board Order No. 49,526, which came into operation on the 2nd April, 1907, part of Haverfordwest Rural District (viz., part of Fishguard Civil Parish) was constituted Fishguard Urban District, and Fishguard North Civil Parish.

† By Local Government Board Order No. 43,786, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1902, part of Narberth Rural District (viz., part of Narberth North Civil Parish) was constituted Narberth Urban District (and Civil Parish).

‡ Grassholm Island is stated to be extra-parochial.

a The large increase in the population of Fishguard North Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the construction of a harbour by the Great Western Railway Company at Goodwick in Llanwnda Civil Parish.

b The large increase in the population of Milford Civil Parish is attributed mainly to the development of the fishing industry.

c The large decrease in the population of Neyland Civil Parish is attributed mainly to decreased employment in the government dockyard and to the removal to Fishguard of the Great Western Railway Company's boat traffic.

d The population in 1911 of Pembroke St. Mary Civil Parish includes 76 persons on board H.M. Ships.

TABLE 21.—PERSONS ENUMERATED ON BOARD VESSELS IN ENGLAND AND WALES AND IN ADMINISTRATIVE COUNTIES, URBAN DISTRICTS, RURAL DISTRICTS, AND CIVIL PARISHES.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

(1) The numbers in the Table include persons enumerated on board His Majesty's Ships and on Merchant Vessels, which were in the ports of England and Wales on the night of the Census or arrived there on the following day, and persons on Hospital Ships, Training Ships and Stationary Vessels, and on Inland Barges and Boats. The persons enumerated on His Majesty's Ships are distinguished in footnotes.

(2) The persons thus enumerated have been distributed among the general population of the parishes contiguous to the waters in which the vessels were lying, with as much accuracy as the information obtained allows.

(3) Fishermen at sea on the night of the Census, and not returning on 4th April, 1911, and persons on board vessels arriving in port later than that date, are not included.

(4) The letters U.D., R.D., C.B., M.B., and C.P., respectively denote Urban District, Rural District, County Borough, Municipal Borough, and Civil Parish.

(5) In the Report on the Census of 1901 the corresponding Tables are numbered 18 in the several County Volumes, and 21 and 24 in the Summary Tables.

NOTE.—By the London Government Act, 1899, the area of the Administrative County of London was thus altered; besides certain other rectifications of boundary which involved very slight changes the Civil Parish of Peuge was severed from the County, as was also a detached part of Clerkenwell situated at Muswell Hill, while the Civil Parish of South Hornsey, formerly part of Hornsey Parish, was added to the County. The population of South Hornsey prior to 1881 is not known, but an estimate has been made for each of the earlier periods, the figures for which are therefore to this slight extent approximative. Since the Census of 1901 certain small interchanges of area have taken place between the Administrative Counties of London and Middlesex, and London and Surrey; it has been possible only to correct for these changes the 1891 and 1901 populations.

* The rates have been corrected for the varying lengths of the intercensal periods.

† In London a special intermediate Census was taken in 1896. The parish of South Hornsey did not then form part of the Administrative County, but an estimate for this Parish is included in the figures for that year.

TABLE 24.—ADMINISTRATIVE COUNTY OF LONDON, OUTER RING, AND GREATER LONDON.—POPULATION 1861-1911 AND RATES OF INCREASE OR DECREASE PER CENT. IN INTERCENSAL PERIODS.

NOTE.—“Greater London” is a term used to describe the area covered by the Metropolitan and City of London Police districts; it contains besides the Administrative County of London a wide belt of suburban towns and districts designated for convenience the “Outer Ring,” the constitution of which is shown in Table 25.

VESSELS AT THE DATE OF THE CENSUS.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

Persons who were at sea on the night of the Census and did not arrive in Port on Monday, April 3rd, were not included in the Returns of Population.

The Vessels referred to in this Table were registered under Part I of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, and belonged to Ports in England and Wales.
